QIM 2.6.1. Programme Outcomes (POs) and Course Outcomes (COs) for all

Programmes offered by the institution are stated and displayed on website and attainment of POs and COs are evaluated.

Response:

Programme outcomes (POs), programme-specific outcomes (PSOs), and programme outcomes (COs) are reported and displayed on the website for stakeholder information. The outcomes of all graduate and postgraduate programmes offered by the university are published on the College website. These outcomes are all aligned with the curriculum. They are based on the structure and content of the curriculum. They relate primarily to the skills, information, and behaviors students acquire in the courses or programmes they take. The College takes a number of steps to communicate its vision, purpose, and programme outcomes to its stakeholders, including students.

The College prospectus, website, and other key areas reflect the college's vision and purpose. Faculty advise prospective students and their parents about the expected outcomes of the programmes so that they can select the right programme during the admissions process. All first-year students receive orientation sessions to familiarize themselves with the goals and expected outcomes of their chosen degree programme. The college adheres to and is associated with the curriculum established by the University of Mumbai. Most of the syllabus prescribed by the University contains POs, course objectives for the subject or a preface outlining the purpose of the course and its objectives. If the outcomes or objectives are not listed in the syllabus, they have been established by the various departments. These syllabi are available to professors and students on the University website and in each department and are explained to students by professors at the beginning of each academic year. Each instructor gives students a copy of the syllabus. Some teachers upload it to Google Classroom. Some others share it in the WhatsApp group set up to communicate with students.

There are extensive discussions about the outcomes of the course and the nature of the material in the syllabus. The goal of the lessons and coaching is to help students achieve the COs that will lead to the POs. All of these consequences are explained in class, directly or indirectly, as to their nature. Teachers hold students to fully understand these objectives. The value of the curriculum content is understood by students after they learn about the outcomes, and they are mentally prepared to learn them. The outcomes shape students' thinking to support their continued professional and personal development.
